The Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Greater Cumberland Vision

Ministering – Ministering is at the center of what we do in our Fellowship. Ministering carries with it the ideas of empathically engaging with and actively doing for the wellbeing of others, ourselves, and our relationships. Ministering is both a relational concept and one that directly involves process; it is contextually dynamic and carried out over time. Ministering includes such active words as giving service to, caring for, aiding, encouraging, supporting, attending to, comforting, assisting, helping, and stewarding. Ministering also focuses on the wellbeing of our community, our environment, our facilities, and our financial resources. Wellbeing is a dynamic and contextually relational process and involves those to whom we minister, those who do the ministering, and the relationship between them.

Mission – The Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Greater Cumberland comes together to create an open and accepting community in order to help ourselves and others develop ethical, spiritual and intellectual lives. We foster the necessary and unending search for truth by encouraging, questioning, listening to, and sharing our diverse experiences and perspectives. We take action together to shape a more just and caring world in which all people are respected for their inherent worth and dignity.
